Carrera de San Jeronimo

Alfaro-Manrique atelier

A integral renovation has been carried out in this apartment on Carrera de San Jerónimo street. The project has consisted of redistributing the space for its maximum use. This distribution is marked by a large box of niches and cabinets that forms the driving element of the concept. The result is a minimalist and dynamic space

San Giovanni apartmento

In this apartment, an “open space” concept was chosen in which the kitchen and living room maintain a constant dialogue, for this purpose a kitchen island with an integrated dining table was designed, which separates the two spaces.

The color palette is a palette of pastel and neutral tones, while in the night area, we find blue and maroon tones, which are more passionate and private colors.

Wood
For furniture in contrast with white.

Spigued floor

Ceramics & marble
As a colder material in contrast with wood as a warmer one.

Fabrics

wallcovering
For the curtains walls in combination with grey scale colors and wooden strips.

Grey tones
For bathrooms and for the exterior and Kitchen floor (creating and union between the indoor and the outdoor)

Green

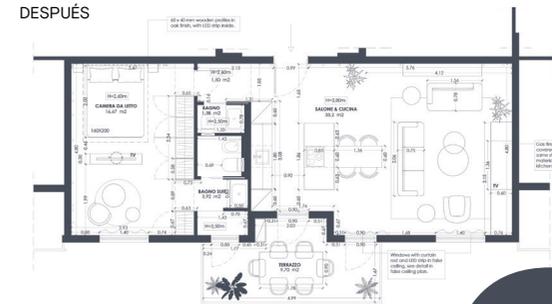

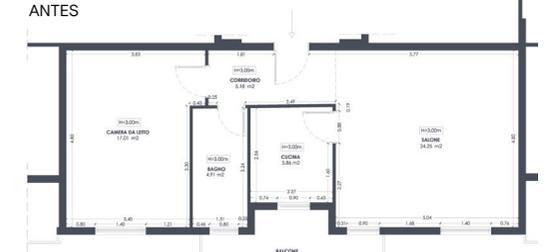

Ciampino Apartamento

The concept of the project revolves around the distribution of the elements. We found three clearly differentiated environments. A daytime environment and a nighttime environment divided by a central box that make up the bathrooms. The idea is that this box acts as a conducting element of the space.

In terms of materials and textures, following the concept of “the three partitions” we will find in the living room materials, lights and sensations that are reminiscent of the colors of the sky and the countryside during the day, it will be a dynamic, bright environment. Just as in the central area, the “bathroom box” we find the materials and textures of the sunset, In the bedroom area will be the night, with dark colors, a passionate and private atmosphere, which invites rest and relaxation. The result is a space that communicates, a space of transitions, in which, as in the course of the day, the day, sunset and night follow one another.

Jardín en Tenerife

In this project the client was looking for a tropical, but contemporary aesthetic. A layering concept was applied, in which each function of the garden was represented by a material (wood, stone, water and vegetation) in this way, a dynamic and fluid space has been achieved, but one that invites you to relax and evokes the wellness world.

Viviendas Bahía de la concha

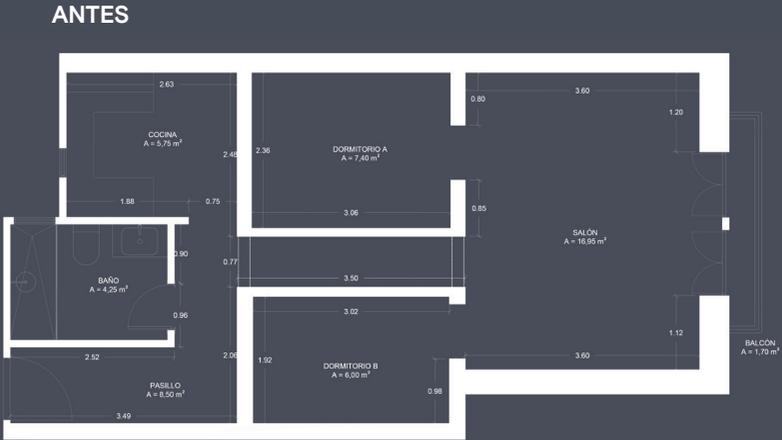

These luxury homes belong to a single building open to La Concha Bay. The building is mixed use containing luxury residential, tourist apartments and restaurants. A prime location for which careful interior design has been developed that provides added value to a mixed-use property in which luxury homes and rental apartments are developed.

The refined design offers large doses of comfort and exclusivity through the use of noble materials, careful lighting and reinterpretation of classic home uses.

Apartamento en Paseo de las Delicias

Complete renovation of this small apartment on Paseo de las Delicias, Madrid. The objective was to make an attractive remodeling to rent the home. The distribution has been opened, decompartmentalizing the rooms and creating a connection between the spaces.

Labranda suites

The Labranda Costa Adeje Suites resort is a hotel located on the south coast of Tenerife consisting of 491 rooms, two large pool areas and 4 restaurants and leisure areas. The entire program takes place in 25,000 square meters.

The interior and furniture design proposal, as well as the exterior spaces, seeks to make the resort an oasis of calm, in which the Canarian landscape is highlighted, referring to its chromaticism, its textures and its vegetation. In this way, the aim is to involve the user in a global experience, in which the resort provides a serene continuity to this fascinating enclave.

About the project

For the interior design proposal, interior landscapes and pieces of furniture have been designed that refer to the natural environment, sustainability, in short, a certain vocation to get closer to the authentic.

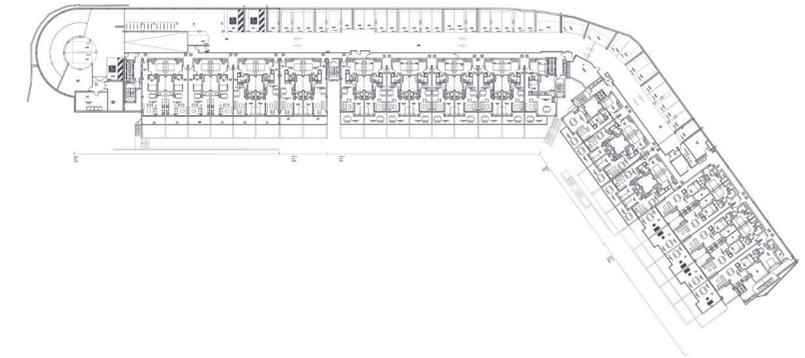

Meral Fuengirola

Meral, located in one of the best beach areas in Spain (Málaga), is a building made up of a total of 132 tourist apartments. It has various types of rooms (duplex, studios, one and two rooms) as well as common areas to satisfy all the needs of its clients, where they can carry out activities and daily life during their stay at the hotel. These areas (reception, coworking, gym, cafeteria, swimming pools and recreational area) have a design that evokes the Mediterranean, using local materials and vegetation along with pieces of national design and manufacturing.

About the rooms

Inside the apartments, the aim is to generate a timeless, clean design based on the premises of the common areas, the local, Mediterranean and with a refined character. Neutral tones are used to emphasize the feeling of calm and, to bring the brand image closer, hints of more daring textures and colors that break with the architectural space are used.

Hotel Inca Zaragoza

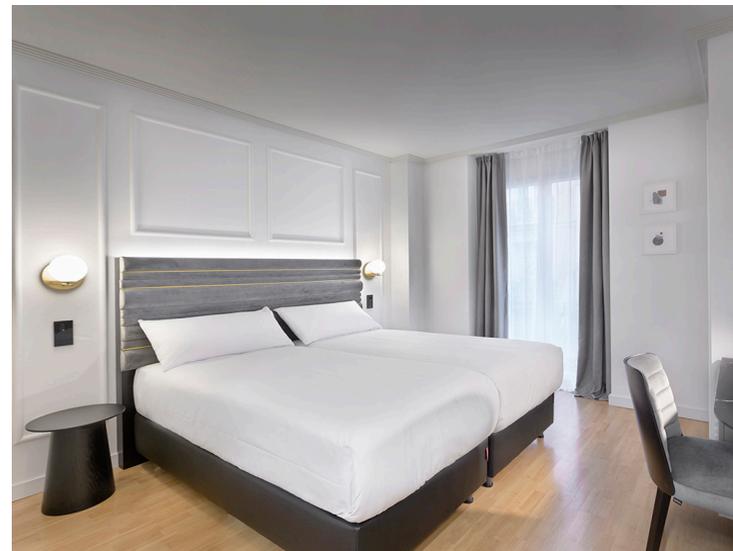

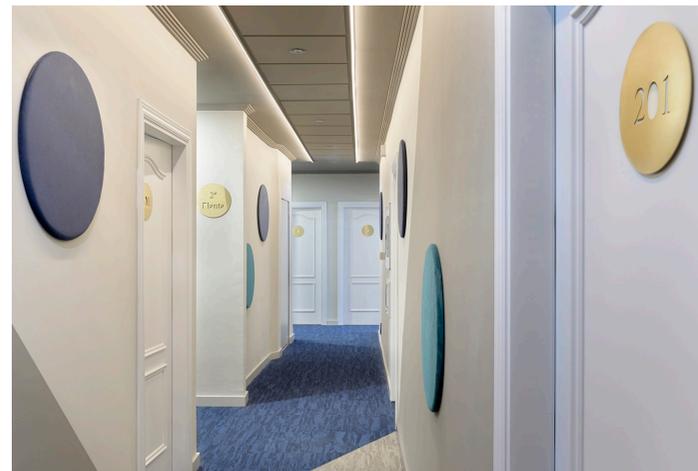

The Inca boutique hotel is located in the center of Zaragoza. The interior design is a reinterpretation of the city's natural environment, the presence of the Ebro River and its overwhelming surrounding nature. An approach to that reality and the value of the senses that also tell us about a place.

The hotel has two clearly differentiated areas, the common areas on the ground floor and the rooms. In the common areas, the hotel opens up to the city, generating a garden-like space where the space allows gathering, relaxation or work areas, as well as a use linked to the hospitality industry. The rooms reinterpret a certain stately vocation of the city of Zaragoza from a contemporary approach.

Altogether, the renovation and interior design of the Inca boutique hotel seeks to offer a new interior landscape to the city and a certain renewed intimacy from the design to its users.

Zubieta apartments

Located a few meters from Playa de la Concha, the interior design and the design of the different elements that make it up are a refined approach to that stately environment in the center of Donosti.

The interior spaces covered in warm materials with a vocation for authenticity to generate a comfortable spatial experience combined with an exclusive design of each of the apartments.

Smy Puerto de la Cruz

The renovation of the Hotel Smy Puerto de la Cruz, a milestone in the city's tourist history, has been carried out with the aim of creating a total landscape, mixing aesthetics linked to Canarian nature and César Manrique's landscaping of the pool area. In this line, natural materials such as wood, vegetation, textiles and natural fibers have been used along with heterogeneous lighting and seeking to particularize the different spaces that relate the user to the collective from their particular experience. The project has covered all the common areas of the hotel to offer a unique experience, as well as the rooms, which have a sophisticated aesthetic in relation to the natural environment and a design that allows flexibility of uses.

Alameda apartments

These apartments are located on the Alameda principal of Malaga, a comprehensive renovation has been carried out, opting for a relaxed, Mediterranean design but at the same time stately and refined.

BeCasa Valdebebas

Together with the prestigious company Greystar, and in collaboration with the interior design studio Alfaró-Manrique Atelier, we carried out the design of the common areas for your building in Valdebebas, a space with more than 3700m². This building seeks to combine the residential area with the hotel sector, generating medium and long-stay apartments with the facilities and benefits of hotels. In this case, the design for the common areas (coworking, reception, pool, gym, rooftop and exterior) is developed, just as the design for the apartments is planned and executed. Being a building located on the outskirts of Madrid, the aim is to generate a design concept linked to the natural and native which we see in the materials, shapes and design proposed throughout the building.

Avalon properties Valdebebas

The design of the common areas of Avalon Valdebebas highlights an experience of warm, authentic design linked to nature. The main objective of the common area should be to encourage social interaction between residents, as well as offer spaces for work and relaxation. The lobby offers different spaces for reception, work and leisure. The reception is a welcoming space, with decoration that reflects the authenticity of natural materials. The pool, located in a natural environment, is surrounded by arcades that create a welcoming and relaxing environment for residents, where they can interact with each other, work in a relaxed manner or rest. The rooftop area offers a space surrounded by splendid views in which the spaces have been designed to host meetings, celebrate events, etc. In short, the design of the common areas of Avalon Valdebebas is a reflection of nature, authenticity and warmth.
